Who says you have to stop caring about design when you become a parent? As the need for functionality increases, the need for good design must remain. However, the mundane items in life are often overlooked. When it comes to baby accessories, it's quite normal to see conventional, plain and boring designs.

Enter Elodie Details, where we believe in the importance of the little things, and their inherent capacity to make our every day life more beautiful and fun. Our mission is to try and elevate those mundane products and make them into the stylish accessories they all have the potential to be.

The child is on the right, also laughing and holding a clear baby bottle with a black cap. Both are wearing white long-sleeved shirts. The background is a plain, light color.
